New Bern, N. C.

A Normal and Academic Institution and

A Summer Normal Institute for Teachers

General Statement

THE Eastern North Carolina Industrial Academy was founded October 25th, 1901, and chartered January 29th, 1903. It is chartered under the laws of the State of North Carolina and has the right to confer such degrees as other schools of similar character. The chief object of this institution is, the extension and improvement of industrial education, as a means of opening better and wider avenues of employment to colored people. While we do not lose sight of the ordinary branches taught in common schools, yet the chief aim is to drill the students in practical workmanship.

The school is divided into five general departments—Manual Training, Classical, Normal, Preparatory and a Summer Normal Institute for the special training of teachers.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT—This course is designed to give the pupil a thorough drill in the elementary branches of an English education.

NORMAL DEPARTMENT.—In this department "teachers are prepared and equipped for their work." The full course covers three years, and the instruction given is with a view to the systematic training of teachers.

CLASSICAL DEPARTMENT.—To complete the course in this department requires three years. The curriculum covers a complete course in Latin, Greek, Rhetoric, Logic, Geometry, Trigonometry, Bookkeeping, English Literature, Political Economy, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Biology, Chemistry, Astronomy, and Christian Evidences.

MANUAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT.—In this department the young men are taught the manual, industrial, and mechanical trades. The young women are taught the domestic sciences, such as sewing, millinery, laundering, cooking, etc.

A special course in Literature, and, also, in Music is provided.

Bible study through the entire courses.

Diplomas are given to those who complete the various prescribed courses.

New Bern, N. C.

In presenting this our first issue of the New Bern Directory we must thank those who have so kindly aided us in gathering the information for the same, as it must be remembered that it is no small task to publish a Directory, especially in a city where the people have not been accustomed to one, unless they in general lend us a helping hand in the way of information, which in this instance we must say has been most cheerfully given to our solicitors. More than ordinary care has been taken by our men to gather information in regard to secret and benevolent societies as well as to business, so we trust our efforts in that direction will be appreciated and meet your approval. To those who have so liberally patronized us in the way of advertising we wish to return thanks. The alphabetical list contains, exclusive of firms, corporations and various institutions, 5,316 names. Multiplying these by 2½, the ratio generally accepted by Directory publishers, we have 13,290 as the population of New Bern.

NEW BERN, N. C.

New Bern is one of the oldest cities of North Carolina, beautifully located at the junction of the Neuse and Trent rivers. Every foot of its soil is sacred to North Carolinians because of the noble part it took in Carolina history.

No more fitting words can be used in describing the beautiful "City of Elms" than the following from the Raleigh News and Observer:

"'Mart of a Truckers' Paradise.'

"Abounding in advantages, and with opportunities right at hand, which have but to be seized upon to give a firm hold u[illegible]e ladder of fortune, is the city of New Bern, N. C., [illegible] the State.

"With a population of about 12,000 people, it is admirably located in the coastal region of North Carolina, in a triangle formed by the junction of the Neuse and Trent rivers, its happy situation on the navigable streams leading over but twenty-eight miles to the open pathway of the Atlantic Ocean, increasing its transportation facilities afforded by lines of railroad connecting it with the leading through railroad systems of the South.

"'The City of Elms,' as it is appropriately termed, was founded in 1710 by Baron De Graffenreid, of the city of Bern, Switzerland, the section being known as Chattawka to the Indians whose home it was, but to the early settlers as New Bern, so named by De Graffenreid in honor of his native home in far-away Switzerland.

"It was the home of Governor Tryon, designated by the Cherokee Indians as 'The Great Wolf of North Carolina,' whose rule in its inception was forced to meet the stormy times of the odious 'Stamp Act.'

A PLACE WITH A HISTORY.

"Living in Wilmington when the Legislature appropriated money for a Governor's palace, Tryon selected New Bern as the future home of the Governors and the place at which the palace should be built. He had in hand about $75,000, and added to this by seizing the school fund, using the money to erect, out of material largely brought from England, a palace designed by English architect, which was in its day the finest building in America. This building had as its final ruling occupant Governor Martin, the last of the Royal Governors, who vacated it in 1775. Only a portion of this beautiful historic building remains, the greater portion of it being destroyed by fire in 1798.

NEW BERN OF TO-DAY.

"The New Bern of to-day is the product of the blending of many elements which could but make their mark. Following the sturdy pioneers who came with De Graffenreid came the English followers of the Earl of Craven, and after these came the French Huguenots and the hardy Scotch Presbyterians, all of these assimilating and producing to-day as typical a class of American citizenship as can be found in any section, the descendants of those who in 1791 greeted General George Washington and General Green as they visited our fair Southland.

TRANSPORTATION.

"By water New Bern is connected by a line of steamers with the Norfolk and Southern Railroad at Elizabeth City, on the Pasquotank River, and via that road with the Pennsylvania, Norfolk and Western, Southern and Chesapeake and Ohio systems of railways at Norfolk, and many American and European steamship lines.

"A regular steamship line and innumerable tramp steamers are at the door of the place, and at Morehead City, forty miles away, there is Beaufort Harbor, with water deep enough for vessels of any draught. Up the Neuse River can come schooners and steamers drawing seven feet of water at any season of the year, while the Trent River is navigable all the year round by light draught vessels to Trenton, a distance of thirty-five miles.

"All portions of the State are in easy reach by rail, and to New Bern can come much of the produce of the country for shipment, whilst the surplus from its teeming fields and its waters thick with fish can readily be shipped to markets needing them. The city has three lines of railroad, and these tap important systems. Situated on the Atlantic and North Carolina, which extends from Morehead City to Goldsboro, it connects at this point with the Atlantic Coast Line system and the Southern Railway system, putting it in close touch with all the cities of America. Another line of road is the Wilmington, New Bern and Norfolk Railroad, extending to Wilmington, where it connects with the ocean via Cape Fear River and the inland country over the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard Air Line. Another railroad soon to be completed is the Pamlico, Oriental and Western Railroad, which will connect New Bern with one of the most fertile sections of the State.

"The various routes put New Bern in close touch with the outside world and provide it with exceptionally quick and cheap communication.

IT IS A HEALTHY PLACE.

"Geographically, New Bern has an ideal situation. It is in latitude 35 degrees 30 minutes north, and with the breeze from Pamlico Sound to temper its summer, and from the Gulf Stream to moderate the winter, all outdoor exercises can be constantly engaged in for the entire year. It is a healthy place, with an exceedingly low death rate, an excellent climate and pure drinking water. It is free from severe types of sickness of any kind, and it is in such a happy situation that all who observe the simplest laws of health are apt to be free from a violent state of any disease."
